

Spadeoak teamed with NatraTex to create a decorative bike lane in Barking, central London, combining usefulness and urban regeneration. Using 6mm NatraTex Colour Green, this project aimed to produce a visually beautiful and durable surface that would improve the area's cycling infrastructure.

The stunning green cycling path not only offered a clear and safe pathway for riders, but it also brought colour to the urban landscape. The NatraTex surface was designed to withstand extensive use and required little care, making it an excellent choice for a bustling metropolitan area.
